

Nevada needs new jobs in new areas...
the old ways of doing things aren't good enough.

Marilyn Kirkpatrick is already doing something about it.

Marilyn Kirkpatrick is working directly with emerging companies, entrepreneurs and investors to bring new, clean high tech industry to Southern Nevada.

Marilyn is cutting the red tape to make things happen.

She's making sure that state and local governments are working together to help clean, high tech industry get started in Southern Nevada.

Marilyn listens . . . and takes action. She meets with everyone involved, sees what is needed, and gets everyone pulling together to create new opportunities and new jobs.

Marilyn pushes for short term start ups. She knows we can put people back to work building new solar and wind generated energy sites . . . and help end our dependence on foreign oil while doing it.

Marilyn understands the long term benefits for Nevada.

That's why she is working to attract new high tech manufacturing industry to Southern Nevada. We have great ratings already as a state which is tax friendly to business, and we need to develop clean manufacturing to create new jobs and keep those jobs here.

High tech, new jobs, and common sense...that's Marilyn Kirkpatrick.
